J.T.

[0030] The fuel storage container [[1]] 2 is configured in such a manner as to hold an alcohol-based fuel such as methanol or an ether-based fuel such as dimethyl ether for a long period of time, and generally is composed of a material that is inactive with respect to the fuel. Although the fuel storage container [[1]] 2 has a substantially square columnar shape in FIG. 1, it may have a cylindrical shape, and hence, the shape thereof is not limited.
